

CMS VATAVARAN 2005 AWARDS

Category	Award	Film's Title	Amount	Director	Producer	Jury's Citation
Wildlife	Best of Festival	Indian Leopards – The Killing Fields	1,50,000	Praveen Singh	Praveen Singh	It deals with the very difficult problem of a man's intruding on animals' habitat, exploring possible solutions, which best seem elusive. It has high cinematic qualities, excellent sense of drama and highlights the film maker's own predicament in this situation.
	Best Documentary Award	The Last Flight	1,00,000	Nutan Manmohan	Nutan Manmohan	For an extremely good analysis of a problem which is significant, but not well known. It cites three possible causes of the decline in Asian vultures and honed in one of them. It was very precise and to the point.
	Best Documentary Award	The Policing Langur	1,00,000	Ajay and Vijay Bedi	Public Service Broadcasting Trust	The film shows wildlife adapts to new urban surroundings because of various pressures. It is somewhat like 'setting a thief to catch a thief' and so will appeal to audiences who are not necessarily sensitized to wildlife conservation. It was visually attractive and resorted to subtle humour and pathos.

2005 Festival Theme: Forest for Life	Best Documentary Award	Invocations to the Mountain Goddess	1,00,000	Christopher Rego	Christopher Rego	This showed how a ban, which was ironically introduced by the government to conserve an ecologically sensitive site, took away the people's livelihood and prevented the community from participating in any such plan. It is a familiar 'people versus conservation' dilemma, located in an idyllic mountain setting.
	Vatavaran Star Award for Best Documentary	Vikas Bandook Ki Naal Se	1,00,000	Biju Toppo and Meghnath	Meghnath	This deals with a deeply-felt problem, showing how well-intentioned development activity has destroyed the ecology and livelihood of a tribal community. This problem recurs in several states and the film does well to illustrate the human dimension.
	Special Mention of the Jury	Leopards of Bollywood	Nil	Animitra Chakravarti	Niret Alva and Nikhil J Alva	A highly watchable and dramatized story of the existence of big cats in a forest, which also houses a Bollywood film studio complex in one of the world's largest cities. The highly stylized treatment – almost like a crime movie - would appeal to audiences in this country and abroad who may not be familiar with these issues.
Environment	Vatavaran Delhi Chief Minister's Award for Best Documentary	A Second Hand Life	1,00,000	Nutan Manmohan	Public Service Broadcasting Trust	This film explored a little-known facet of environmental degradation and employed a novel technique in dealing with it through the eyes of two children from different class backgrounds. This is a problem that has yet to unfold and the film maker does well to tackle it pro-actively.

	Best Documentary Award	River Taming Mantras	1,00,000	Sanjay Barnela and Vasant Saberwal	Moving Images	This film documents a complex issue very well and raises fundamental questions to which there are two easy answers. The issue acquired additional importance in the context of current proposals to inter-link rivers nationally.
Animation	Best Animation Film Award	Irony	50,000	R Sathya Narayanan	Ramanujam Foundation	The idea is expressed brilliantly in under a minute, with great precision and the 3-D animation is of high quality.
	Special Mention of the Jury	Cute Bunny	Nil	Dhimant Vyas	P Jayakumar, Toonz Animation India Pvt. Limited	It is very encouraging to see the overall quality so high, specially because most are made by students. The jury thought that such innovations made by younger film-makers were worthy of reward.
